DESCRIPTION OF ISSUES

I'm a SF native and resident of SF, never married person living with an elderly parent. The plan was to inherit my house in order to continue living in it. If I needed extra income, I could rent out my home. Because of Prop 19 those plans are threatened.

I am an artist with low income. Upon my parent's death, to be able to afford the new taxes and future property taxes, I will have to go into my retirement savings. That will be exhausted very quickly. I am anxious of my future. There will come a point where I cannot afford the taxes and I may be forced to sell. Where would I go? I can't afford another home in SF. The equipment, vehicle and supplies for work means I have to have a large living accommodation, so I may be forced to move far away in an area I could afford. Maybe out of state. And my career may not be able to flourish in a new, far off location.

If I wanted to cash out and make millions from my house sale, then great. But, I DON'T WANT TO MOVE. My life is in SF. If I'm forced to sell, I would be removed from friends, family and the clientele I have built up.

Prop 19 should be repealed.
